PREFACE.

Dr Watt, the Author of the Bibliotheca Britannica, died when only a few of its sheets were printed off. He left the work, however, in such a state of forwardness as not to affect its completion; and, shortly before his decease, circulated a Prospectus, containing copious specimens and explanations of the plan of the intended publication, which was very favourably received. From this prospectus, the following explanatory remarks are extracted, in as concise a form as possible.

In the First Part of the work, the Authors are arranged in alphabetical order, and under each is given a chronological list of his works, their various editions, sizes, and prices. In the Second Part, the same materials are digested under the names of the various subjects to which they refer, and under each the titles of works are again arranged chronologically. The first part is a full and comprehensive catalogue of authors and their works;—the second an equally complete and extensive encyclopædia of all manner of subjects on which books have been written. To make the work more perfect, and, at the same time, condensed, a mode of reference has been adopted by which any title may, with ease, be traced from the second to the first part. In this, the reader has to notice the number and letter at the end of the article; he then finds the same number on the top of the columns in the first part; he next runs down the margin till he comes to the letter, between which and the succeeding one he will find the article wanted. The first figure on the top of the page marks the number of the alphabet with which the page begins,—the second the number of the alphabet with which it ends. Thus, page 3. begins with 2 d, and ends with 2 t: page 4. begins with 2 u, and ends with 3 k, &c.

The first division of the Bibliotheca Britannica contains the names of upwards of forty thousand Authors, and of each, as far as possible, a short biographical notice is given. It thus serves, in some measure, as a concise but comprehensive biographical dictionary, containing not only all the literary names to be found in other dictionaries of that kind, but many thousands more derived from other sources. The lists of their works, too, are much more ample; their titles are given at full length; and the various editions, translations, and subsequent improvements are most particularly noticed. Upon the early printing, both of this country and the continent, much pains has been bestowed. All the early British printers, noticed by Ames, Herbert, and Dibden, have been inserted, and the works arranged both under the printers' names and under their respective authors. Notices, equally full, and from other sources, have been given of every early foreign printer of any eminence; and the works entered under these are, in like manner, given under their authors. There is thus condensed into this part of the work, the substance of all that has been published with regard to the early history of printing. The account given of the Greek and Roman classics, and other more modern works which have been considered as classical, is much more comprehensive than any thing which has been printed in this country. Besides the list given of the British and Foreign editions of their different works, there is likewise given an account of the English translations, whether printed separately or forming a part of other works; and also of the principal translations which have been made in the other modern European languages. The system of arrangement, too, in articles of this kind, is simple and condensed, both from the manner in which the different works of the author have been separately classed, and from the numerous contractions which have been adopted. The account given of British writers and their works is universal, embracing every description of authors, and every branch of knowledge and literature. What has been admitted of foreign publications, though selective, forms a very considerable and valuable portion of the work, and, as none of any note have been purposely omitted, the Bibliotheca Britannica may be considered as an universal catalogue of all the Authors with which this country is acquainted, whether of its own or of the continent. In addition to those titles of distinct or separate publications which come properly under the scope of the work, all the more important periodical works on art and science have been minutely analysed, and the various papers entered under their author's name, with a reference to the volume and page of the publication where they are to be found. This has been done with the Transactions of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, the Transactions of the American, Linnean, Geological, Horticultural, &c. Societies, the Transactions of the Irish Academy, the Archæologia, Hearn's Collection, Duncan's Commentaries, Nicholson's Journal, Tilloch's Philosophical Magazine, Thomson's Annals of Philosophy, Medical and Physical Journal, and many other works of a similar kind.

The Second Part or division of the work is a minute index to the first. In this part the subjects are arranged alphabetically; and under each all the works, and principal parts of works treating of that subject, are arranged in chronological order, so as to form a sort of annals of what has been written on every subject, from the first publication to the last. This part, too, besides serving as a minute index to the first, includes a very complete list of all the anonymous and pseudonymous works which have appeared in this country. These are inserted according to their respective subjects and dates; and to those which have appeared within the last half century, the publishers' names have been given. Definitions, chiefly scientific, and geographical notices of places, consistent in briefness with what is said regarding authors in the first part, have been pretty generally admitted; and where the subjects are extensive, or of a vague or comprehensive description, they have been arranged under various subdivisions, or placed under their different significations. Countries and kingdoms have one systematic classification throughout. Under the names of places, there is prefixed a list of the eminent literary characters to which they have given birth—an addition not necessary to the plan of the work, but which may prove curious and interesting.

These explanations will, it is hoped, enable the reader to form a pretty good notion of the design of the work now laid before him; and it remains with him to determine its utility. In an undertaking of such magnitude, and so extensive in its scope,—having all the disadvantages of a first attempt, and the blunders and contradictions of numberless authorities to combat with,—many inaccuracies, doubtless, must have passed, and much must have been omitted. These, every candid mind will make allowances for. If unwearied care and indefatigable labour for nearly twenty years—if the sacrifice of a useful life in the cause—was all that was necessary to render the BIBLIOTHECA BRITANNICA accurate and complete, there would now be little solicitude about its success.

Allatius, at Paris, 1637, 4to.—And his whole works, Gr. & Lat. with his Life, and the Various Readings and Annotations of Wolfius, at Bas. 1572.—This Author is most generally found printed along with some of the Orations of Demosthenes.

ÆSCHYLUS, one of the most eminent Tragic Poets of ancient times, was born at Athens, and is supposed, according to Stanley, on the Arundelian Marbles, about 400 years B. C. In his style, sentiment, and expression of character and passion, he has been justly compared with Shakespeare. The editions of his Tragedies are—Tragœdiæ, Gr. Lat. cum Scholiis Græcis. Fragmenta, &c. by Stanley. Lond. 1663.—Choëpheræ; Sophoclis Electra; et Euripidis Electra, Gr. Oxon. 1729, 12mo.—Tragœdiæ vii. Græcè cum Lectionibus Varientibus. Glasg. 1746, 4to. Gr. Lat. Glasg. 1746, 2 vols. 12mo. The 4to. edit. is preferable to the 12mo. for correctness, although the blunders in the small one are not of much moment.—Prometheus Vinctus, Tragœdia, Gr. Lat. Morelli. Lond. 1775, 4to. This also contains an English Version.—Choëphoræ Tragœdiæ, Gr. Lat. Glasg. 1777.—Prometheus Vinctus Trag. Gr. Lat. a Morrell. Eton, 1781.—Tragœdiæ Gr. cum Emendat. et Novis Lection. à Porson. Glasg. a Foulis, 1795, fol. Of this edit. only 52 copies were printed, 11 of which large paper. The type is the same as the fine edit. of Horace, and it is illustrated with beautiful Designs of Flaxman, executed in all the taste and spirit of antiquity, and they sell at a very high price.—Tragœdiæ, Gr. Lat. Porsoni. Glasg. 1796, 2 vols. 8vo.—Prometheus Vinctus, Gr. Lat. Morelli. Eton. 1798, 8vo.—Tragœdiæ. Oxon. 1808, 8vo.—Tragœdiæ, ex edit. Schutz. Oxon. 1809, 12mo.—Tragœdiæ quæ supersunt Deperditarum Fabularum Fragmenta et Scholia Græca, ex editione Thomæ Stanleii, cum Versione Latinâ ab ipso emendatâ, e Commentario longe quam antea fuit auctiori ex Manuscriptis ejus nunc demum edito. Accedunt Variæ Lectiones et Notæ, VV. DD. Criticæ ac Philologicæ; quibus suas passim intertexuit. Buttlerii Cantab. 1809-12, 4 vols. 4to. This edition supplies the desideratum which the learned world for a long time complained of, a variorum edition of this Author.—Tragœdiæ, Gr. Lat. cum Scholiis Gr. ex editione Stanleii et Sam. Butler. Cant. 1809, 6 vols. 8vo.—Tragœdiæ, ex recensione Schutzii. Oxon. 1810, 2 vols. 8vo. 1811, 12mo.—Choëphoræ Trag. Gr. Lat. adj. Chorici Cantus ut in Tentamine Burnei. Edin. 1811, 12mo.—Αισχυλου Προμηθευς Δεσμωτης. Επτα επι Θηβας. Περσαι. ——FAB. FOREIGN EDIT. Editio Princeps. Æsopus. Vita et Fabulæ, Gr. Lat. Fabulæ quædam Selectæ, Gr. Lat. Without date, place, or printer's name, 4to. This is a book of the greatest rarity.—Vita et Fabulæ, Latinè, r printed by Zarotus. Milan, 1476, 4to. This would appear to be the 4th edition of the Latin Versions of Æsop, being previously published at Rome, 1473, 1475, and at Milan, 1474.—Fabelle, translate e Græco a Laurentio Valens. Subnectitur Boccatii Hist. de Guiscardi et Sigismundæ Amore; a Leon. Aretino in Latinum Sermonem Conversa. An. 1438. sine anno aut loco, aut nom. impressoris.—Vita et Fabulæ, per Rynuntium e Græco in Latinum Translata, 4to. Sine an. aut loc. aut nom. impressoris.—Æsopus Avienus, &c. Lat. et Ital. Versibus. Verona, 1479, 4to. a very rare book, and adorned with curious cuts.—Fabulæ, Latine Tarvisii, 1479.—Æsopus. Vita et Fabulæ, cum Avieni, Adelphonsus, et Poggii Facetiis.
s Germanicè et Latinè, printed by John Zeiner. Ulm. without date, fol. A very splendid volume, illustrated with curious cuts.—Æsopus Latinis Versibus. Without date, place, or printer's name, 4to. In this edition every Fable is accompanied by a Prose Explanation and Moral, printed in a smaller type.—Æsopus. Fabulæ Selectæ. Latinis Versibus. Without date, place, or printer's name, 4to. The author of this poetical version is one Romulus.—Fabulæ, Gr. Lat. Milan, 1480, 4to. This is by some held as the second book printed in Greek characters, and by some the Editio Princeps; it is a work of uncommon rarity.—Fabulæ Latino Carmine redditæ, Montelregali. 1481, fol. A scarce work.—Vita et Fabulæ, Lat. per Rimicium et t Avienum; cum Fabulis Dictis Extravagantibus et Collectis tam Carmina quam Prosa, per Gerardum Leen in oppido Goudensi. 1482, 4to. By some this is considered the first edition of Æsop, with engravings.—Fabulæ Latinè et Italicè, seu Francisci Tuppi Parthenopei in Vitam Æsopi Traductio, materno sermone fidelissima, et in ejus Fabulas allegorice, cum Exemplis antiquis modernisque et Figuris, Neapoli, 1485, (some suppose 1495,) fol. This is one of the scarce and most admired editions of Æsop. The engravings are uncommonly curious.—Fab. Lat. cum suis Moralisationibus, imp. per Gerardum Leen. 1488, 4to.—Fab. Lat. Mediolan. a Philip de Lavagnia. 1489, 4to. This is a very rare book, and sells at a very high u price.—Fab. Lat. Carmine, cum Comm. Daventriæ, 1490. Reprinted, Lugd. 1538, 8vo.—Fab. Latin and Italian. Venice, per Manfredum de Monteserato, 1491, 4to. This is a very scarce edition, being a reprint of the one in 1481. The designs of the cuts are excellent, and seem to have been executed by some old painters.—Fab. cum Comment. 4to.—Fabulæ, Lat. et Ital. Versib. Accii Zuchi cum fig. 4to. Impress. Venetiis per Manfredum de Monteserato, 1493.—Æsopus Moralisatus, Latino Carmine, cum Interpretatione, printed by Jacob de Breda. Daventer, 1494, 4to.—Fabulæ Latino Carmine, cum Fabulis Rimicii et Avieni, &c. Latine. Without date, place, or printer's name, fol. This is rather a splendid edition, v and will be prized by the curious, as it contains one of the earliest impressions of the Extravagantes, adorned with wood cuts.—Fab. cum Bono Comment. Davent. 1496, 4to.—Fabulæ quædam Selectæ, printed by Bertochus. Reggio. Gr. Lat. 1497, 4to. This is a fac-simile reprint of the Editio Princeps.—Fab. Lat. Ital. printed by Mæstro Manfredo de Bonello de Streno da Mõfera. Ven. 1497. 4to. This is a reprint of the edition by Zucchus. Verona, 1479.—Vita et Fabulæ, Gr. Venet. 1498, 4to. This is added to a Greek edition of Phalaris of the same date. It is now rather scarce.—Fabulæ xxx. Latinè, printed by J. de C. de Tridino. Venice, 1399, (for 1499,) 4to. This is a curious work, accompanied with w figures and tables. There are perhaps few other books of which so many editions were printed, prior to 1500. The following are the principal editions which have been printed since:—Fab. 1500, fol. without place, but supposed Venice.—Apologi, sive Mythologi, cum quibusdam Carminum et Fabularum. Additionibus Sebastiani Brant, cum fig. lign. literis Gothicis. Basil, 1501. Besides Æsop's Fables, this edition also contains some from Avienus and Rimicius, besides a great many jests and witty sayings selected from other Authors. To this edit. there seems also to have been another on the same year, from the deficiency in numbers and mutilated appearance of the wooden blocks.—Fab. Louvain. 1503, 4to. This is in Gr. with the x Interpretation of Aldus.—Æsopi et Gabriæ Fabellæ. Phurnutus de Natura Deorum. Palæphates de non Credendis Historiis. Heraclides Ponticus de Allegoriis, apud Homerum. Ori Apollinis Hieroglyphica. Collectio Proverbiorum Tharræi et Didymi, &c. Aphthonius de Fabula, Prisciano Interprete. Apologus Æsopi de Capite apud Gellium. Æsopi Vita a Maximo Planude composita, Gr. et Lat. apud Aldum. 1505, fol. One of the rarest and most elegant of the Aldine classics.—Fabellæ et Vita, Gr. Lat. ab Aldo Manutio. Lovan. 1517, 4to.—Fab. Frobenii. Basil, 1518, 1521, 1523, 1524, 1526, 8vo.—Fab. Latinè Laurentii Abstemii Hecatomythium. Venice, 1519, 4to.—Fab. cum aliis Opusculis. Bas. 1524, 4to.—Fab.
y Lat. cum figur. lign. forma minima. Lutet. 1529.—Fab. et alios Fab. Lat. Lips. 1530, 8vo.—Fabellæ, Gabriæ Fabellæ, Homeri Batrachomyomachia, Museus de Ero et Leandro, &c. Gr. Lat. Jo. Frobenii. Basil. apud Hier. Froben. et Nic. Episcop. 1534, 8vo.—Centum Collectio. Basil. 1538, 8vo.—Fabellæ, Gabriæ Fabellæ, Aphthonius de Fabula, Homeri Batrachomyomachia. Musæus. Galeomyomachia, &c. Venet. apud Jo. Farreum. 1542, 8vo.—Fab. cum aliis Fab. Gr. Lat. per Joann. Hervagium. Basil. 1544, 8vo.—Fab. Gr. Parisiis. R. Steph. 1546, 4to. This is a most beautiful edition of Æsop, and is one of the best specimens of the wonderful talents of the celebrated Stephans.—Another one by Stephans, Gr. Lat.
z Paris, 1546, fol. This contains 149 Fables, with some additional ones, by Nevelet, from a MS., which are considered spurious, from the Monks being often commended in them.—Fab. cum Gabria, Batrachomyomachia, Museo, Agapeto, &c. Gr. Lat. Venice, apud Nic. Sab. 1549, 8vo.—Centum Fabulæ, Gr. Lat. et cum aliis Opusculis. Ven. 1549.—Fab. Gr. Lat. Basil. 1550, 8vo.—Vita et Fabellæ, et Gab. Fabellæ, et alior. Basil, apud N. Bryling. 1550.—Fabule di, Lat. et Ital. con fig. Ven. per August. de Bindonis. 1553, 8vo.—Æsopi et aliorum Fabulæ Lat. cum Æsopi Vita per Max. Plan. Lugd. 1554, 8vo.—Fab. Gr. Lat. Plautin, 1560.—Fab. Gr. Plautin. Antw. 1567, 12mo. This is a rare and beautiful edition, but a not very correct; it contains also the Fables of Gabria, the Batrachomyomachia of Homer, and the Hero and Leander of Musæus, &c.—Fabulæ, fig. Gabriæ Fabellæ, Batrachomyomachia Homeri, Galeomyomachia, omnia Gr. Lat. Avieni Fabulæ. Lugd. apud Jo. Tornæsium, 1570, 12mo.—Vita et Fabulæ, Latin, by Camerarius, illustrated with wood cuts. Lugd. apud Tornæsium, 1571, 12mo. Reprinted, 1605, 1614, scarce.—Vita et Fab. Gr. Lat. Antw. 1574, 16mo.—Fab. Gr. Lat. Lugd. apud Tornæs. 1582, 8vo. illustrated with wooden figures.—Centum Fab. Gr. Lat. Venet. 1587, with cuts in wood.—Fab. Lingua Vulgari Græca. Ven. 1603, 8vo. This had previously been printed at Venice, 1543, 4to.—Mythologia Æsopica, in b qua Æsopi Fabulæ Græco-Latine 297 Quarum 136 primum prodeunt, accedunt Gabriæ Fabulæ etiam auctiores: Anonymi veteris Fabulæ, Phædri, Avieni, Abstemii Fabulæ cum Notis Isaaci Nicolai Neveleti. Franc. 1610, 8vo. 1660, 8vo.—Fabellæ quædam, Apothegmata Select. Græcé; et Gnomæ, Gr. Lat. Argent. 1662, 8vo.—Centum Fab. a Hartnaccio. Hamb. 1711, 12mo.—Centum Collectio, Gr. Lat. Mariani. Hamb. 1718, 8vo.—Fab. Gr. Lat. Amst. 1726.—Fab. Hauptmanni. Lipsiæ, 1741, 8vo. From Hudson's edition, but less accurate.—Fab. Heusingeri, Lipsiæ, 1741 and 1756, 8vo. These two dates belong to the same impression. This work contains the Latin Interpretation of Camerarius, and the c Editor's own notes with those of Hudson. It was reprinted 1770, 1771, and 1775.—Fab. Desbillons. Paris, by Barbou. 1769, 8vo.—Francisci Josephi Desbillons, S. J. Fabulæ Æsopiæ, curis posterioribus omnes fere emendatæ accesserunt plusquam CLXX. Novæ Manhem, 2 vols. 8vo. with cuts.—Fab. Basil, 1780, 8vo.—Fab. Gr. Ernesti Lipsiæ. 1781, 8vo. containing the legitimate Fables of Æsop only, carefully collated with the Variæ Lectiones.—Life of Æsop, by Count Giulio, in Italian. Ven. 1545, a curious book, and very rare—and also, another Life, by Meziriac, printed at Bourg, in Bresse. 1632, 16mo.

ALDUS, Manutius the Elder, or, as he occasionally calls himself, Aldus Romanus, or Aldus Manutius Romanus, a most celebrated Printer, was born at Bassiano, a small town in the vicinity of the Pomptine v Marshes, 1447; died 1515. Two other printers of the same family, have been particularly distinguished; Paul Minutius, his third son, born 1512, and Aldus the Younger, or son of Paul Minutius, born 1547. The former of whom died 1594, the latter 1597. The range of Aldine editions extends from 1494 to 1597. With regard to the choice of them, those executed by the elder Aldus are greatly preferred by some collectors, while others esteem nearly equally all printed before 1529. Some seek with great avidity those printed by Paulus Minutius, particularly those prior to 1562. The following alphabetical list contains the acknowledged genuine editions of the Aldine Press:—Ferdin. Abduensis Orat. et Epigram. By this work he is the first who shewed the importance of refractions in astronomy.—He also wrote on Twilight, wherein he discourses on the height of the Clouds. This work is entitled, De Crepusculis et Nubium Ascensionibus. Olyss. 1562, 4to. Conimb. 1573.

ALI, the Cousin and Son-in-law of Mohammed. On the death of Othd man he was declared Caliph by the Egyptians and inhabitants of Mecca and Medina. Died A. D. 661.—He left several Collections of Sentences, Proverbs, and Pieces of Poetry, the fragments of which Golius and Letté having collected, published them, first the one at Leyden, 1629, the other 1746, at the end of Ben Zobair's Poem. The same Fragments, translated into French by Vather. Paris, 1660. Ockley, in the third edition of his History of the Saracens, gives an English Version of 169 Sentences of Ali, published with a Latin translation by Guadagnoli. Rome, 1642. By Knypers, under the title, Carmina. Arabice et Latine. Lugd. Bat. 1745, 8vo. This contains six small poems.

ALIX, Peter, a French Writer of considerable spirit, was born at Dole, in 1600; died 1676.—His Dialogue entre Porte Noire et la Pillori, 1672, a facetious composition, was censured by Father Dominic Vernerey, Inquisitor of Besançon, and this produced an answer from Alix, entitled, —Eponge pour effacer la Censure du P. Dom. Vernerey. This, as well as his other works, is very scarce.

ALKEMADE, Cornelius Van, a learned Dutch Antiquary, was born 1654; died 1737.—He wrote a Dissertation on Tournaments, 1699, j in which he treats of the Ceremonies used at the Court of Holland in the days of Chivalry. Third edit. published 1740, by Peter Van der Schelling, his son-in-law, with the addition of a Dissertation on the Origin, Progress, and Decline of Tournaments and Single Combats.—In 1700 he published, Muntspiegel der Graven van Holland, &c. Delft, fol. being a Chronological Series of Coins, struck under the Reigns of the Counts, from Floris III. to Philip II.—A Treatise on Modes of Burial. Delft, 1713, 8vo. —His principal work, and that for which he is most esteemed by his countrymen, was Nederlandsche Displechtigheden. 1732, 3 vols. 8vo. A work not only extremely curious for its illustration of the ancient manners of the k Dutch, but for the number of its beautiful engravings.

ALKMAR, or ALKMAAR, Henry, a supposed writer, whose name leads rather to a dissertation than a life, passes for the author of a poem in old German, very popular in that country, and entitled—Reineke de Voss, or Reynard the Fox, a kind of satire on the manners of the times during the feudal system. What was thought to be the first edit. of Reynard was printed at Lubec, in 1498, and frequently reprinted at Rostock, Francfort, and Hamburg. There is, however, in the library of the city of Lubeck, a copy of a work, with the same title, and nearly the same contents, but more full, and in prose, printed at Delft, 1485; and another has l been discovered still older, printed at Goudes or Tergow, by Gerard Leew, in 1479. These two Reynards are exactly the same, written in the Dutch or Flemish dialect; differing little from that of Friesland, Westphalia, or Lower Saxony. From them, it would appear that Alkmaar had done no more than to versify and enlarge the fictions of the old Reynard. He says himself, in the preface, that he translated the present work from the Welch and the French.

ALLÆUS, Author of—Arabis Christiani, (Yvonis Capuchini) in Astrologiæ nova Methodo, Rhedonis Herbert, 1654, fol. a very scarce book, and of which there have been two spurious editions; the one is known m from the want of the word Rhedonis, the other is dated 1658. It was at one time suppressed, as containing baleful predictions against the powers of Europe, and especially of England.

ALLAINVAL, The Abbe Leonor-Jean-Christine Soulas d', was born at Chartres; died at Paris, 1753. He gave to the French and Italian theatres several Comedies, that met with tolerable success.—He also wrote, Anecdotes of Russia under Peter I. 1745, 12mo.—Connoisance de la Mythologie. 1762, 12mo.

ALLAIS, Denys Vairasse d', so named from the town of Allais in Languedoc, where he was born.—His works are, A Methodical French n Grammar. 1681, 12mo. An Abridgment of that Grammar in English. 1683, 12mo.—The History of the Severambians, first printed in 1677, 2 vols. 12mo.; the second 1678 and 79, in 3 vols. 12mo. It was reprinted at Amst. 1716, 2 vols. 12mo.

ALLAM, Andrew, An English writer of the 17th century, born near Oxford, 1655; died 1683.—Among his works are, The learned Preface or Epistle to the Reader, with a Dedicatory Epistle in the Printer's name prefixed to the, Epistle congratulatory of Lysimachus, Nicanor, &c. to the Covenanters of Scotland. Oxon. 1684. The Epistle, containing an Account of Dr. Cocsin's Life prefixed to the Dr.'s book, entitled, Ecclesiæ o Anglicanæ Politia. The Preliminary Epistle, with a Review and Correction of the book, entitled, Some Plain Discourses on the Lord's Supper, &c. written by Dr. George Griffith, Bishop of St. Asaph. Oxon. 1684, 8vo.—Additions and Corrections to a Book entitled, Angliæ Notitia, or the Present State of England. They appeared in the edition of that book, printed at London in 1684.—Additions to Helvicus's Historical and Chronological Theatre, printed with that author in 1687.—He laid the foundation of a work entit. Notitia Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ; or a History of the Cathedral Churches, &c. of England; but death stopped his design.—He likewise translated the Life of Iphicrates, printed in the English version of p Plutarch, by several Gentlemen of Oxford. 1684, 8vo.

APPIAN, an eminent Historian, flourished under the reigns of Trajan and Adrian, about A. D. 123.—He wrote the Roman History in Greek, in a very peculiar method, giving distinct histories of all the different nations that had been conquered by the Romans, and placing every thing relative to those nations in one connected and uninterrupted narrative. Of all this voluminous work, there remains only what treats of the Punic, Syrian, Parthian, Mithridatic, and Spanish wars; with those against Hannibal, the civil wars, and the wars in Illyricum, and some fragments of the Celtic or Gallic wars. These have been translated into English under the titles —An Avncient Historie and exquisite Chronicle of the Romanes Warres, both Ciuile and Foren. Written in Grecian by the noble Orator and Historiographer Appian, of Alexandria, one of the learned Counsell to the moste mightie Emperoures Traiane and Adriane. In which is declared, their greedy desire to conquere others. Their mortall malice to destroy themselues. Their seeking of matters to make warre abroad. Their picking of quarels to fall out at home. All the degrees of sedition, and all the effects of ambition. A firme determination of fate thorough all the changes of fortune. And finally an euident demonstration that peoples rule must giue place, and princes power prevayle. With a Continuation, bicause that part of Appian is not extant, from the death of Sextus Pompeius, second sonne to Pompey the Great, till the ouerthrow of Antonie and Cleopatra; after the which time, Octauianus Cæsar had the lordship of all alone. Lond, 1578, 4to, &c.—And, Appian's History in two parts. The 1. consisting of the Punick, Syrian, Parthian, Mithridatic, Illyrian, Spanish, and Hannibalick Wars. The 2. consisting of the Civil Wars of Rome, made English by J. D. Lond. 1679, fol. 1703, fol.—The earliest and best foreign editions of this Author, are, Historiarum Romanarum Libri, e Græco Latinè redditi, interprete Pet. Candido. It contains, besides the editor's learned notes, those of Tollius, d'Orville, and Valckenaer. Abresch published a thin supplementary volume to this edition, consisting of additional notes and observations. Amst. 1752.—Translated into French; par C. Foucault. Rouen, 1598, 12mo.

z ARISTARCHUS, a celebrated Greek Philosopher and Astronomer, was a native of the city of Samos, supposed to have flourished about 420 years B. C. There is only one work of his extant, upon the magnitude and distance of the sun and moon, in Greek.—De Magnitudinibus et Distantiis Solis ac Lunæ, Lat. per G. Vallam. Ven. 1498.—De Magnitudinibus et Distantiis Solis ac Lunæ, cum Pappi Alexandri Explicat. a Fed. Commandino Latine red. Pisaur. 1572, 4to. This contains the editio princeps of the original Greek.—Ejus Opera, Gr. et Lat. Oxon. 1688, 8vo. et in Opera Wallisii, p. 565. Oxoniæ, 1699, fol.—There is another work, which goes under the name of Aristarchus, which is generally believ-a ed to be spurious, entitled, De Mundi Systemate, cum notis P. Roberval. Paris, 1644, 8vo. Lat. Par. 1647.

ARISTEAS, a Prefect, or Officer, under Ptolemy Philadelphus, king of Egypt. It is reported that Ptolemy having sent him to demand of the high-priest Eleazar some learned men, to translate the Jewish laws from Hebrew into Greek, he complied, by choosing seventy-two persons, who made the translation known by the name of the Septuagint. The following work, attributed to him, is now universally considered a forgery.——(Brit. Edit.) Historia de S. Scripturæ Interpretibus. Oxon. 1692, 8vo. Reprinted by Archdeacon Hody, with a confutation in his work, entitled, b De Bibliorum Textibus Originalibus. Oxon. 1705, fol.——(Eng. Trans.) —The Ancient History of the Septuagint, written in Greek, by Aristeas, 1900 years since. Newly done into English, by J. Done, (with this quaint motto, Tempora, Tempera, Tempore). Lond. 1633, 12mo. The second edition, revised and very much corrected from the original. Lond. 1685, 8vo.—The History of the Seventy-two Interpreters. To which is added, the History of the Angels, and their Gallantry with the Daughters of Men, written by Enoch the Patriarch. Published in Greek by Dr. Grabe, made English by Mr. Lewis. Oxford, 1715, 12mo.—History of the 72 Interpreters. Translated into English by Will. Whiston, (authentic Records).
c Lond. 1727, 8vo. part ii. p. 493.——(For. Edit.)—This work was first published in the Bible printed at Rome in 1471, 2 vols. fol.—Historia lxxii. Interpretum, Gr. Lat. per Mathiam Garbitium. d Scholiis Græcis. Oxon. 1672, fol.

ARISTIDES, Ælius, the Sophist, a native of Adriani, a small town in Mysia, about the year 176 of the Christian æra.——(Brit. Edit.)—Opera Omnia, Gr. Lat. cum notis et emendationibus Gul. Canteri, Tristani, Palmeri, T. Fabri, Spanhemii, Normanni, et Lamb. Bosli; adjunctis insuper Veterum Scholiis; et prolegomenis Sopatri Apameensis, ab erroribus et plurimum repurgatis, Græce, cum MSS. codicibus variis collata, recensuit, et observationes suas adjecit, &c. S. Jebb. Oxon. 1722, 2 vols. 4to. This is the best of all former editions. This edition contains the var. lect. of several MSS. and has been collated with two copies of the editio e princeps, the one containing the MS. notes of Fred. Morel, together with the Scholia and the notes of Canter, with the Life of Aristides, written by the learned Massonius. Oxon. 1730, 2 vols. 4to.——(For. Edit.)—De Civili Oratione, Græce, p. 641. inter Rhet. Ald. Ven. 1508. This work also contains De Simplici Oratione, Græce, p. 663.—Orationes duæ, de Laudibus Athenarum, et Urbis Romæ, Græce. Ven. 1513.—Orationes, Græce. Florent. apud Juntas, 1517, fol. This is the first edition of the fifty-two Orations of Aristides. It was edited by Bonini, a Florentine physician. It contains the hypothesis of some early writer upon his Panathenaicus, Leuctrian, and Platonic Orations, the Oration of Libanius, conf cerning the Antioch sedition, and the Notitia Philostrati de Aristide. This work is elegantly printed, and not ranked among the very rare books.—Oratio de Laudibus Urbis Romæ, Lat. per Scip. Carteromachum. Ven. 1519, 8vo.—Orationes, Gr. Venet. apud Ald. 1527, fol.—Orationum, Lat. per G. Canterum. Basil. 1566, 3 vols.—Orationes quædam, Gr. Lat. Paris, 1577, 8vo.—Orationum, Gr. Lat. versione Canteri. Paris, 1604, 3 vols. 12mo. A very neat and commodious edition, but not so complete as the editio princeps.—Orationes, Gr. et Lat. Normanni. Upsal. 1677, 8vo.—Orationes duæ ad Achillem, et in ineptos et futiles Sophistas, Gr. Lat. cum notis Laur. Normanni. Upsal. 1687, 8vo.—Oratio adversus g Leptinen. Libanii Declam. pro Socrate. Aristoxeni Rhythmicorum Elementorum Fragmenta. Venet. typ. C. Palesii, 1785, 8vo. apud Laurentium Basilium.

ARISTIDES, Quintilianus, a Writer on Music, is supposed to have lived about the beginning of the second century of the Christian æra.—There are three books of his on Greek Music extant, printed with notes, Gr. Lat. by Meibomius, among the Antiquæ Musicæ Auctores. Amst. 1652, 4to.

ARISTIPPUS, of Cyrene, in Africa, disciple of Socrates, and founder of the Cyrenaic Sect. He flourished about the year 400 B. C.; died at h Cyrene, on his return from the Court of Syracuse. He wrote several books of history and ethics, which are now lost. One on ancient Luxury, mentioned by Diogenes Laertius, is certainly not his.—The following work goes under his name; Epistolæ, Gr. Lat. cum notis L. Allatii. Paris, 1637, 4to.—Ejus Vita, Mores, et Dogmata, cum notis. Hal. Mag. 1719, 4to.

ARISTOPHANES, a celebrated Comic Poet, cotemporary with Plato, Socrates, and Euripides, and probably a native of Athens.——COMMŒDIÆ.—Comœdiæ, cum versione Latina, variis lectionibus, notis, &c. a Brunck. Oxon. 1810, 4 vols. 8vo.—Editio princeps, Comœdiæ xi. Græce, ex recognitione Marci Musuri, with the Greek Scholia. Venice, i printed by Aldus, 1498. This edition contains only nine plays, the Lysistrata, and Thesmophoriazousai, forming the 10th and 11th comedies, not being published till the year 1515, by the Juntæ at Florence, in 8vo.—Comœdiæ undecim, Græce. Florent. apud Juntas, 1515, 12mo. This edition contains better readings than that of Aldus. This is also a scarce work, and of some value.—Comœdiæ novem, Græce, with the Scholia. Florent. per Hœredes Philippi Juntæ, 1525, 4to. This is edited by Francinus, with a very copious index.—Comœdiæ novem. Paris, apud Ægid. Gormuntium, 1528, 4to.—Comœdiæ undecim, Græce. Basil. apud Cratandrum, 1532, 4to. This is a rare, correct, and celebrated edition, and the one on which most j of the subsequent editions are formed.—Comœdiæ undecim, Græce. Ven. ap. Zanetti; 1538, 12mo.—Comœdiæ, Lat. Andr. Divi. Basil. 1539, 8vo.—Comœdiæ novem, Græce. Florent. apud Juntas, 1540, 12mo. This is a very rare edition, and contains Aristophanes's Life, in Greek.—Comœdiæ, Wechelii, sine Scholiis, Græce. Paris, 1540, 4to. This is an elegant edition, and has each play distinctly printed by itself, with its own particular inscription.—Comœdiæ undecim, Græce. Venet. apud Johan. Farræum, 1542, 12mo. This edition has been very much celebrated; a great part of it is a repetition of Zanetti's.—Comœdiæ undecim, Græce. Francf. 1544, 12mo.—Comœdiæ. Paris, apud Wechel, 1546, 4to.—Co-k mœdiæ undecim, Gr. et Lat. with the Scholia, by Froben. Basil. 1547, fol. The two last plays, the Θεσμοφοριαζουσαι, and the Ανεστρατα, want the Scholia. This is a beautiful and accurate edition.—Comœdiæ undecim, Græce. Lugd. Bat. apud Gryph. 1548, 12mo. The editor of this edition is Caninius; it is considered a very correct one.—Comœdiæ, Gr. Lat. per Nic. Frischlinum. Franc. 1586.—Vita et Comœdiæ, v. Gr. Lat. per Nic. Frischlinum. Franc. ad Moen. 1597, 8vo.—Comœdiæ undecim, Græce, Plantin. Lugd. Bat. 1606, 12mo. A scarce and very correct edition.—Comœdiæ, Græce et Latine, Æm. Porti. Geneva, 1607, fol. It has sometimes Aur. Allob. on the title page as the place. Besides the old Scholia, l by Bisetus, this edition contains the notes of C. Girardus on the Plutus, Florus Christianus on the Vespæ, Pax, and Lysistrata, together with his Latin version, and of Bourdinus on the Ecclesiazousai.—Comœdiæ, Gr. et Lat. a Scaliger. Lugd. Bat. 1624, 12mo. This work has been much praised by some critics. The notes are short and useful.—Comœdiæ xi. Gr. et Lat. ut et Fragmenta Comœdiarum deperditarum; cum emendationibus Virorum doctorum, et Jos. Scaligeri observationibus; quibus accessit nova versio Tanaquilli Fabri, et notæ in Concionatrices. Amstel. 1670, 2 vols. 12mo. This is a fine edition, but not so correct as Scaliger's.—Comœdiæ, Gr. et Lat. Lugd. Bat. 1670, 12mo. A very good edition.—Comœdiæ, m Gr. et Lat. cum Scholiis, a Biseto. Aur. Allob. 1673, fol.—Comœdiæ, Gr. et Lat. ex Cod. MSS. emendatæ, cum Scholiis antiquiss. Accedunt notæ virorum doctorum in omnes Comœdias. Omnia collegit, et recensuit, notasque in novem Comœdias et quatuor indices in fine adjecit, Ludolph Kusterus. Amst. 1710, fol. This is the editio optima of this author. It contains some new Scholia on the Lysistrata; some notes of Isaac Casaubon on the Equites; and of Spanheim and Bentley on a few of the earlier plays. To the first five plays is the metrical version of Frischlinus. To the Vespæ, Pax, and Lysistrata, is the metrical version of Christianus.—Comœdiæ xi. Gr. et Lat. ad fidem optimorum codicum manuscript. emen- n datæ, cum notis Stephani Bergleri curante Pet. Burmanno secundo. Lugd. Bat. 1760, 2 vols. 4to. This edition contains the unedited notes of Stephan Bergler and Charles Ducker; the fragments of the lost Comedies, collected by Canter and Coddæus; the Indexes by Fabricius and Meursius, and an account of the Life and Merits of Aristophanes.—Comœdiæ xi. Græce et Latine. Scaliger. form. min. Amst. 1770.—Comœdiæ, Gr. Lat. with notes by Brunck. Argent. 1783, 4 vols. 4to. An elegant and valuable edition.—Comœdiæ, auctoritate libri præclarissimi sæculi decimi, emend. a P. Invernisio; acced. critica animadvers. Scholia Græca, indices, et adnotat. Lips. Charta Belgica, 1794, 3 vols. 8vo. This is a copy of one of the o most correct MSS. of this Author in the 10th century. To this work is added critical annotations, the Greek Scholia, and indexes by Beck.—His works have been translated into Italian, and printed at Ven. 1545, 8vo.—In French, trad. Le Févre. Paris, 1684, 12mo.——SINGUL. COMŒD. —Ranæ.—The Frogs, a Comedy. Translated into English verse from the Greek of Aristophanes, by C. Dunster, A. M. 1784, 4to. 4s. e In these notes, he unfolds the Pythagoric and Platonic Dogmas respecting numbers and ideas. To which is added, a Dissertation about Nullities and diverging Series, in which the conclusions of the greatest modern Mathematicians, on this subject, are shewn to be erroneous, the Nature of infinitely small Quantities is explained, and the Τὸ Ἕν, or The One, of the Pythagoreans and Platonists, so often alluded to by Aristotle, in his work, is elucidated.—Metaphysica, cum Commentariis Averrois Patavii. e OPERA OMNIA, &c.—(Eng. Trans.) The Works of Aristotle, by Thomas Taylor. 9 vols. 4to.—(Foreign Editions.) Moralia, Politica, Œconomica, Latine, Leonardo Aretino interprete, sine anni, loc. aut typog. nom. sed Argentinæ Typis Mentelleanis, circa 1470, 6 vols. fol. Editio Princeps. A book of the greatest rarity. It is printed in the small Gothic character, with excellent white thick paper, and broad margins.—Opera aliqua Latine. Venet. apud Andream de Asula, 1483, 5 vols. fol. This is a most elegant edition. It is printed in the Gothic character, and contains the Commentary of Averroes, interspersed between the paragraphs.—Aristoteles et Theophrastus, Opera, Gr. Printed by Aldus, Venice, 1495-8, forming 6 vols. fol. This is a magnificent and very rare edition, f and the Editio Princeps, wherein the works of Theophrastus are united. The Greek character has been much admired for its elegance, in this work, at such an early period in the art of printing.—Vita et Opera, Lat. cum Variorum Comm. et Annott. per Jo. Bapt. Bagolinum. Ven. apud Juntas, 1500, &c. 11 vols.—Opera quædam, Gr. 1521, 4to. 1527, 4to.—Opera ex Editione Des. Erasmi. Basil. 1531, 2 vols. fol. This edition is in Greek. To which is prefixed, the Life of Aristotle, by Guarinus of Verona. This work was reprinted at Basil. Gr. 1539, 2 vols. fol. This is exactly a reprint of the preceding.—Opera. Basil. 1542, 3 vols. fol.—Opera, Gr. per Erasmum. Basil. 1550, fol. This is the third edition of g the work by Erasmus, and contains numerous additions. It contains the Observations and Annotations of Velsius, Flaccius, Gesner, and Victorius; and the Various Readings are placed on the margin, with the different Books divided into Chapters, after the Latin editions. And it also contains the Life of Aristotle, by Diogenes Laertius.—Opera, Gr. P. Manutii. Venet. 1551, 6 vols. 8vo. This is an elegant edition, on excellent paper. The character is small, with several contractions.—Aristotelis et Theophrasti Scripta quædam, Gr. et Lat. apud Hen. Steph. 1557, 12mo.—Opera, Gr. Lugd. 1560-68, 8 vols. 12mo.—Opera Varia, Lat. per Joach. Perionium. Paris, 1577, 4to.—Opera, Sylburgii. Francof. 1584-7, 4to. 5 vols. in 10, h 4to. In Greek. This is a beautiful edition, and the most correct and complete of any of the preceding. It contains three Indexes to each volume. 1. A short Synopsis of the Heads of each Tract or Book: 2. Verborum Græcorum; and, 3. Rerum Memorabilium. With several Tracts from Theophrastus.—Vita et Opera, Gr. Lat. per Is. Casaubonum. Lugduni, 1590, 2 vols. fol. This edition contains three Indexes: 1. Containing the Names of the Authors who have written upon Aristotle: 2. Of the principal Subjects discussed in the work: and, lastly, a General Index of Persons and Things. This was reprinted at Geneva, in 1596-1605, and at Lyons, 1597.—Opera, Gr. Ven. apud Aldum, 1595-7-8, 4 vols. fol.—

i Opera, Gr. Lat. Pacii. Geneva, 1597, 5 vols. 8vo. Sometimes bound in two, three, or more volumes. This was reprinted at Lyons, 1602, &c. 6 vols. 8vo. And at Geneva, by Samuel Crispin, 1607.—Opera, Gr. Lat. Lugd. 1597, 8vo. A respectable edition.—Opera, Gr. et Lat. Lugd. 1597, fol. 1646. An inferior edition. Accesserunt, ex Libris suis, qui hodie desiderantur, Fragmenta quædam. Lugd. 1599, 2 vols. fol.—Opera, Aurel. All. 1605, fol.—Opera, Gr. et Lat. Casauboni. Ariol. 1606, 2 vols. fol.—Opera Omnia, Gr. et Lat. ex Editione et cum Notis Guill. Duval. Parisiis, Typis Regiis, 1619, 2 vols. fol. This edition, with the following by the same editor, very much resemble those of Casaubon. It j was reprinted, 1629, 2 vols. fol. Paris, 1639, 4 vols. fol. Paris, 1654, 4 vols. fol. The two last editions are printed in a larger character, but greatly inferior to the first in correctness. They also contain a Synopsis Analytica Doctrinæ Peripateticæ.—Ejus, et Averrois Cordubensis, Opera Omnia, Latine, cum Indice Antonii Pessii, a Monte Ilicino. Ven. 1660-62, 11 vols. 8vo.—Opera Omnia, Græce, ad Optimorum Exemplarium fidem Recensuit. Annot. Critic. Librorum Argumenta et Nov. Vers. Lat. cura Bahlii. Bipont. 1791, 5 vols. 8vo. This is a very elegant and correct edition, and supersedes all that precede it, for utility and correctness.

f AUGUSTIN, Samuel.—Author of a work entit. Prolegomena in Systema sexuale Botanicorum. Viennæ, 1777, 8vo. Illustrated with six copperplates.

AUGUSTINE, St. or, contracted, St. Austin D. Aurelius, an eminent Father of the Church, was born at Tagasta, Nov. 13, in the year 354; died of a fever, 28th Aug. in the year 430, at Hippo, while that city was besieged by the Vandals. Such was the popularity of St. Augustine, that Panzer enumerates no less than 176 editions of various parts of his works, before 1500, of which the following are the principal:——

SINGUL. OPUSC.—St. Augustine of the City of God, with the Com g mentary of Ludovicus Vives. Lond. 1610, fol. Reprinted 2d edit. 1620. This latter edition is the best. De Civitate Dei, libri xxii. Printed in; Monasterio Sublacensi Conradus Sweynheym, et Arnoldus Pannartz die vero 12, mensis Julii, MCCCCLXVII. fol. This is the editio p princeps of this curious work. It is ornamented with illuminated capitals, and is elegantly printed. This, with the editions in 1468 and 1470, consist collectively of 825 copies, and must therefore be works of extreme rarity. This work has of late become very interesting, as being the foundation of those opinions afterwards forwarded by Godeschalcus in the 9th century, and particularly by Calvin in the 16th, relating chiefly to Predestination. De Civitate Dei, editio princeps Romana, cum literis cap. depict. et deaur. Romæ, apud Sweynheym et Pannartz, in domo P. de Maximo. 1468, fol. This is one of the earliest books printed at Rome, and is oftener met with than the preceding. De Civitate Dei, Venice. The first book printed by Vindelin de Spira, 1470, fol. De Civitate Dei. Rome, printed by Sweynheym and Pannartz, in domo P. de Maximo, 1470, fol. This is very different from the preceding edition, in the extracts from the Roman Poets, and appears to have been taken from very different MSS. De Civitate Dei, edit. vetus et perantiqua, absque loci et anni indicatione, sed ante annum 1470, excusa, fol. This h edition contains the first impression of the Commentaries of Valesius and Trivetus, upon the text of St. Austin. It is printed in double columns, on fine stout paper. De Civitate Dei, libri xxii. cum Commentariis Th. Valois et Nicholai Treveth. Moguntiæ, per Pet. Schoiffer, 1473, fol. A work of great rarity. De Civitate Dei. Romæ, 1474, large folio, printed in a small character, as used by Ulric Han. This is a valuable edition, and was printed by Udalricus Gallus Alamanus, and Simon Nicolaus de Luca. De Civitate Dei. Venet. 1475. This edition seems to have been done from one of Jenson's, that came out the same year, being both of the same type, and equally neat and elegant. The printer is j Gabriel Peter de Tarvisio. De Civitate Dei. Neapoli, 1477, fol. De Civitate Dei, cum Comment. Thomæ Valois, et Nicolai Triveth. Basil. 1479, fol. De Civitate Dei. Lovan. 1488. De Civitate Dei, et Hilarius de Trinitate. Mediol. per Leon. Pachel. 1489, fol. De Civitate Dei. Friburgi, 1494. De Civitate Dei, cum Comm. Lud. Vivis. Basil. 1522, fol. This popular work was translated very early into Italian, and printed at Venice, 1473. A work of great rarity. Translated into French under the title, La Cité de Dieu, traduite à la requisition de Charles V. Roi de France, par Raoul de Pruelles, or Praesles. Printed by Jehan Dupré, and Pierre Gerard. Abbeville, 1486, 2 vols. fol. This is the earliest k known book from the Abbeville press. The types, paper, and wood cuts exhibit extraordinary beauty and singularity. In French, par Hervet. Paris, 1570, fol. Paris, 1531, 2 vols. fol. Flores Beati Augustini, extracti ex libris de Civitate Dei, per Franciscum de Mayronis. Nuremb. 1477, fol.—A Treatise of St. Augustine, that famouse Doctour, Of Faith and Workes, newly translated into English; with a Treatise of Justification, founde among the writinges of Cardinal Pole. Pridie Idus Aprilis, folio. This work is without printer's name, and the only work published at Laugingen, in Suabia, in the 15th century. The printers are supposed to have been some itinerant workmen. This work is said to be a pretty handsome production.—De Consensu Evangelistarum. Par. 1538, 12mo.— z Exercitatio Fidelis Animæ ad Elemosinam faciendam, 4to.—De Prima et Secunda Sacri Corporis Translatione. Paris, 1685, 8vo.—Liber Epistolarum, Argentinæ, typis Mentelianis, circa 1470. This work is printed in columns. These Epistles contain very full information upon the Donatists and Pelagians, which heretics were very troublesome to the Romish Church in the time of St. Augustine.—Liber de Questionibus Orosii Marsipoli. Lucas de Brandis, 1473, 4to. This is the first edition of this curious tract. It is an exceeding rare book. This printer was the first and only one at Mersbourg in Saxony, before the year 1500, and this work is very valuable, as being the first production of his press. Several productions concerning Augustine and his works have been printed in England. Certain pieces of a St. Austin, communicated to the reader for the vindication of miracles in the church, &c. p. 339. Paris, 1659, 8vo. St. Augustine's Religion collected from his own writings, by John Brierly. Lond. 1620, 8vo. This Brierly was a Popish priest, and wrote this work to prove that St. Augustine held the Popish doctrine. This was answered by several works, one entitled, St. Austin's Religion (per anon.) proving out of his writings that he departed from Popery. Lond. 1624, 4to. by William Crompton, (with a similar title). Lond. 1625, 4to. And again by the same, in a work entitled, St. Augustin's Sums. BEATTIE.—Aristotelis de Rhetorica, Gr. et Lat. Camb. 1728, 8vo.

BEATTIE, James, LL. D. F. R. S. E. an eminent Scottish Critic
r and Poet, and Professor of Philosophy and Logic at Aberdeen, was born at Laurence-Kirk, in the county of Kincardine, 1735; died 1803.—Original Poems and Translations. Lond. and Edin. 1761. Consisting partly of originals, and partly of pieces formerly printed in the Scots Magazine.—The Judgment of Paris; a Poem. 1765, 8vo. 1s. 6d.—A new edition of his Poems. Second edition. 1766, 8vo. To this edition he added a Poem on the Talk of Erecting a Monument to Churchill, in Westminster-Hall, said by Sir William Forbes, to have been first published separately, and without a name.—Essay on the Nature and Immutability of Truth, in opposition to Sophistry and Scepticism. 1770, 8vo. 6s. Edin. 1771, 8vo.
s 1772, 1773. Lond. 1774, 8vo. 1776. Such was the eagerness with which it was bought up and read, and the just praise bestowed upon it, by the most distinguished friends of religion and learning in Britain, that in four years five large editions of this Essay were sold; it was translated into several foreign languages, and attracted the notice of many eminent persons on the Continent.—The Minstrel, or the Progress of Genius; a Poem. Book i. Edin. 1771, 4to. Book ii. Edin. 1774, 4to. Published together with a few juvenile poems. 1777, 2 vols. 12mo. Edin. 1803, 4to. A new edition, with the Life of the Author, by Alex. Chalmers, Esq. 1805, 8vo. Book iii. being a continuation of the Minstrel, appeared in 1807. 4to. 6s.

Paris, 4to.—Specu-z lum Veri Antistitis, in Vita Alphonsi Torribii, Archiepiscopi Limensis, in Peruvia. Paris, 4to.

BEAU, John Lewis le, Professor of Rhetoric in the College of the Grassins, and Member of the Academy of Inscriptions, was born at Paris, 1721; died 1766.—He is the Author of a Discourse, in which, after having shown the pernicious effects of poverty to men of letters, and what dangers they have to dread from riches, he concludes, that the state of a happy mediocrity is the fittest for them.—He published an edition of Homer, Greek and Latin. 1746, 2 vols.; and the Orations of Cicero. 1750, 3 vols.

a BEAUCAIRE, de Peguilon Francis, in Latin, Belcarius Peguilio, Bishop of Metz, a man of some note in the 16th century, was born 1514; died 1591.—His history, which extends from 1461 to 1580, or according to Bayle, from 1462 to 1567, is not very properly called a history of his own times. The title of the publication, however, is, Rerum Gallicarum Commentaria, ab A. 1462 usque ad A. 1566. Lyons, 1625, fol.—His tract on the baptism of infants, alluded to by Beza, may perhaps be, Traité des Enfans morts dans le Sein de leurs Mères. 1567, 8vo. The question being, whether children dying in the womb, and consequently without baptism, are saved, which he was disposed to answer in the negative.

q BERNSTORF, John Hartwig Ernest, Count, Minister of State in Denmark, was born at Hanover, 1712; died 1797. He was a most celebrated Politician of his day, and his—State Papers, on the Principles of the Court of Denmark, concerning Neutrality, were published, 1780.—And his Declaration to the Courts of Vienna and Berlin, 1792, have been much admired.

BEROALD, or Beroalde, Matthew, was born at St. Denis, near Paris; he died 1576.—He was the Author of a curious little Piece, called, Chronicon Sacræ Scripturæ, auctoritate constitutum. Geneva, 1575, fol. Basil. 1577, 8vo. In this he maintains, that all chronological authorities r must be sought in the Scriptures.

BEROALDE de Verville, Francis, son of Matthew, was born at Paris, 1558; supposed to have died about 1612. His Works are chiefly sought by the collectors of curiosities, and are not much read; the most of which are published under the title,—Apprehensions Spirituelles. Paris, 1583, 12mo.—His other Works are, Histoire veritable, ou le Voyage des Princes Fortunés. Paris, 1610, 8vo.—Le Cabinet de Minerve, &c. Rouen, 1601, 12mo.—Moyen de Parvenir. Under various titles, being a collection of licentious tales, sought only by collectors.

BEROALDO, Peter, the Younger, a noble Bolognese, was born at s Bologna, 1472; died 1518. He had more taste than his namesake in poetry, and chiefly employed his time in the same pursuit, but with less labour; his only productions are,—Taciti Annalium libri quinque priores. Rome, 1515. Lyons, 1542. Paris, 1608, fol. This work has been six times translated into French, and by Writers of some eminence.

BEROALDO, Philip, the Elder, one of the most eminent Scholars of the 15th century, was born at Bologna, 1453; died 1505. His reputation chiefly rests on the good editions of the Classics which he superintended, as, —Caii Plinii Historia Naturalis. Parma, 1476. Trevisa, 1479. And, Paris, 1516, in fol.—Annotationes in Commentarios Servii Virgilianos. t Bologna, 1482, 4to.—Propertii Opera, cum Commentariis. Bologna, 1487. Ven. 1497. BION and MOSCHUS, two ancient Greek Poets. Their works are generally found printed together. Bion was a native of Smyrna, and flourish-q ed under Ptolemy Philadelphus, about 288 years before the Christian æra; his style is pure, and elegant, and he is ranked among the very first of pastoral Poets. Moschus was born at Syracuse, and was a disciple of Bion; his style is not so refined as his instructor, but less rustic than Theocritus. The Greek editions printed in Britain are,—Bionis Opera. Camb. 1652, 8vo.—Et cum Moscho. Camb. 1661, 8vo.—Bion et Moschus, Gr. Lat. Lond. 1655, 4to.—Bion et Moschus, Gr. Lat. Lond. 1659, 4to. Subjoined to Whitford's edition of Musæus.—Bion et Moschus Heskini, Gr. Lat. Oxon. 1748, 8vo. This edition is both elegant and correct, it contains the whole of Longepierre's Notes, translated into r Latin, with the errors corrected.—Bionis et Moschi Idyllia, Græcé, illustrabat et emendabat Gilb. Wakefield, 1795, 4to. This is a most elegantly printed work, by Bensley, at London, and the Editor's Notes are both original and appropriate.—Bionis, Moschi, et Tyrtæi, quæ supersunt, Gr. Lat. Edin. 1807. Beautifully printed.—The English Translations of these two Authors are, Anacreon, Bion, and Moschus; Kisses, by Secundus; Cupid crucified, by Ausonius; Venus' Vigils, and other Poems, by Thomas Stanley, Esq. Lond. 1651, 8vo.—The Idylliums of Moschus and Bion, translated from the Greek by Mr. Cooke. Lond. 1724, 8vo.—The Origin of Amorous Pastorals, from the third Idyllium of Bion, translated s from the Greek, by G. O. Esq. in the Gentleman's Magazine, for June 1749.—The Idylliums of Bion and Moschus, translated by Francis Fawkes, M. A. with his Anacreon, &c.
